ORGANIZATION

Be clear. Be clean. Be organized.

Resumes should generally be organized into three or four sections.

- 1. Heading
- 2. Education
- 3. Experience
- 4. Other categories

Resume length: The standard length is one page. If you have prior substantive work experience, see your CSO about a two-page resume.

Margins: You should not go smaller than .75 inches on the top and sides and .5 on the bottom.

Fonts:

- Calibri
- Arial
- Helvetica
- Book Antiqua
- Century Schoolbook
- Garamond
- Times New Roman
- Verdana

Font Size: Should be no less than 11pt

ProTip!
To make a one-page resume you can:

- Condense information to one line.
- Adjust the margins, change fonts or size.
- Change the space between tabs.
- Delete the least important information.

1. Heading

Your heading should include the following information:

 Name: Most people use the following format: First Name Middle Initial Last Name “Tom M. Riddle.” If you go by your middle name, use the following format: “T. Michael Riddle.” The goal is to be as clear and consistent as possible, so as to not confuse an employer.

 Address: Most legal employers require full addresses. You may consider leaving this off in certain situations. Talk to your CSO for more details.

 Email: We recommend that you use your tamu.edu email. If you use a personal email, make sure it is professional (first name, last name) and that you check it frequently.

 Phone: This will normally be your cell phone. Make sure your voicemail is set up and is professional.

 LinkedIn URL: Add your personalized LinkedIn URL to showcase your online professional presence.

ProTip!

Make sure the information you provide is consistent – list the same email address on your resume as is on your business card, and list the same address on your resume as is in your cover letter, if you are providing a mailing address.

ProTip!

Make sure your LinkedIn profile includes the following information:

- You are a law student at TAMU Law,
- You are in Fort Worth, TX,
- Under Education, list both TAMU Law and your undergraduate (and any additional advanced degrees),
- Any relevant work experience, and,
- Your professional headshot.

2. Education

Your education information should always come first. Remember to list it in reverse chronological order (law school first then undergraduate school), as legal employers will be most interested in your current education.

When listing your law school, use the following format: 1) Name of Law School; 2) City and State; and, 3) Graduation Month and Year.

Under the law school section, we recommend you include the following categories:

First, both your GPA and class rank/rank cut-off.*

*Legal resume drafting experts generally recommend including class rank if you are in the top half of your class. If you fall outside of the top one-half and are unsure if you should include your GPA, please reach out to your career advisor, who can help you best highlight your strengths.

Examples:

- GPA: 3.84, Class Rank 6/121, (Top 5%)
- GPA: 3.64 (Top 20%)
- GPA: 3.40 (Top 33%)
- GPA: 3.21 (Top 50%)

Include grades for courses you've excelled in, if relevant to the employer.

- Example: For a position in the D.A.'s Office, “Received an A+ in Criminal Procedure, Fall 2024.”

Second, list academic achievements, awards, honors, and scholarships. For scholarships, consider adding in a brief explanatory note within parenthesis that speaks to the significance (amount/percentage of tuition awarded, and awarded to how many students).

Third, list skills-based and writing activities, such as: Law Review, Property Journal, Mock Trial, Moot Court, Alternative Dispute Resolution, Toastmasters, Teaching Assistant, etc.

Fourth, list involvement and leadership activities, such as: SBA, BLSA, HLSA, Criminal Law Society, Business Law Society, The Big Event Committee, etc.

Fifth, list any membership in professional organizations, such as the Texas Aggie Bar Association or elected or appointed positions. If a member of a number of student organizations, consider listing all together in one bullet point (Member: ____; ____; ____).

3. Experience

The four most common subcategories in this section are:

Legal Experience

Research Experience

Professional Experience

Volunteer Experience

You can also choose to be more specific and in some instances list other experiences, such as: military experience, corporate experience, engineering experience, etc. If your experience does not fall within two or more specific categories, consider listing it all under a general “Experience” section.

It is critical that you list experiences and positions that are relevant to the current employer (e.g., legal skills and skills that are transferable to the law). Also, be sure to highlight activities and experiences that demonstrate accomplishments and leadership.

Employment should be listed in reverse chronological order, with most recent at the top.

If you are currently in a position, you should list the duties and responsibilities using present tense.
If you are no longer in a position, you should list the duties and responsibilities using past tense.

ProTip!

You should add experience that highlights excellent writing skills, responsibility, or leadership abilities. Examples:

- Published article “Fourth Amendment Rights.”
- Financed 100% of law school expenses through summer and part-time employment.
- Organized First Big Event Committee for Law School.

ProTip!

Highlight accomplishments and skills that are useful in the legal profession.

- Example: Research, Negotiations, Drafting, Managing Clients.

Don’t just say “Drafted documents.” Describe the things you have done as much as you can, and quantify where you can, when the number is significant.

- Example: “Drafted Motion for Summary Judgment, Motion to Compel Documents, and five Requests for Production of Documents in complex medical malpractice case.”

Below are examples of how to highlight your experiences:

Legal Experience

- Perform legal research for labor and employment cases
- Draft briefs for review by supervising attorney
- Drafted traditional and no-evidence motions for summary judgment, plea in abatement, and answered discovery requests in insurance defense cases.

Professional Experience

- Developed new chemical process which received patent.
- Began as a volunteer; hired on basis of performance.
- Employed up to 30 hours per week on third shift while attending school full time. On Dean's List six of eight semesters.
- Upon graduation from college, founded software company. Within 10 years, operating as multibillion dollar business.

Research Experience

- Developed quick, concise writing style under strict time constraints.
- Developed advanced research skills in a specific legal area.

Volunteer Experience

- Consider listing legal, non-legal, and volunteer experience. These can show commitment, skills, and networking ability.

ProTip!

- You do not need to give the same level of description/number of bullet-points for each position. Think about the significance, relevance, and the amount of time spent in a role.

ProTip!

Don't say you are fluent in a language if you are not - you never know when you may have an interviewer who is fluent and will test you on your knowledge!

4. Other Categories

This section can include any information you think an employer may find relevant, interesting, or that would make you stand out.

Examples are: professional licenses, certifications, foreign languages, athletic accomplishments, activities and hobbies.

NOTE ABOUT POTENTIALLY CONTROVERSIAL ISSUES

You should always be aware of potentially controversial topics, such as religion or politics, on your resume.

If you feel the value of the experience is less important than the potential downside for the specific employer, you may want to leave it off.

If you feel the value of the experience is important and you are comfortable with a potential downside for the specific employer, then you should leave it in.

Make sure to research your employer to know if the issue would be a liability or an asset. Use your own judgment when addressing these issues on your resume.
