I understand that as an auditor at Texas A&M University School of Law, I will not receive credit for this course. I have also reviewed the online Law School Programs and Policies and agree to obey all rules that apply to me.

Students who are currently enrolled in Texas A&M University School of Law may audit a class offered by the law school after they have completed their first year (full-time students) or their first two years (part-time students) if the professor approves and space is available in the class.

Auditing of a law school class is not permitted by a person, other than a current student, who has not graduated from an ABA-approved law school. Law school graduates seeking to audit a course must first obtain the approval of the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs.

No credit hours are earned when a course is audited. The fee for alumni to audit one class is $100.00; the fee for other law school graduates is $250.00. The fee will be waived for law graduates 65 years of age or older.
